

WATSON SEES TREATY VOTE NOVEMBER 11

With both Republican and Democratic Senators split on the question of amending the German peace treaty, Senator Watson, Republican of Indiana, who took the same view on Saturday, was, however, of the opinion that November 11, the anniversary of the signing of the armistice, would be nearer the mark. Other Senators on the Republican side stated they would be surprised if

Government Sale of Furniture and Equipment

Once again the Washington Public will have an opportunity to purchase furniture and equipment, from the Department of Labor, such as was used in the houses occupied by Government Workers during the war.

The sale will be held on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays of each week, from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., starting Monday, October 6, 1919, at the storehouse, North Capitol and D streets.

The sale includes new and nearly new Bedroom, Living Room and Dining Rooms Furniture, Blankets, Linens, Chinaware, Glassware and Kitchen Utensils.

An excellent opportunity is afforded the small buyer, as each and every item will be sold at set prices in any quantity desired.

Sale conducted under the supervision of the United States Housing Corporation.

final action was taken by the middle of next month. Debate on the Shantung amendment, which would restore to China the German control of the Chinese province Japan seized during the war, is to be resumed today with unmistakable indications that it would continue during the rest of the week, and probably into next week.

Senator France (Rep.) of Maryland is to take up his long speech in opposition to the treaty, where he left off when the Senate adjourned yesterday. He is to be followed by Senator Knute Nelson (Rep.) of Minnesota, an advocate of the League of Nations, and Senator David L. Walsh (Dem.) of Massachusetts, who, like Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia and other Democratic Senators, openly favors reservations to the treaty.

Walsh has stated that he is so bitterly opposed to what he terms the "crime of Shantung" that he is prepared to vote for even the Shantung amendment unless a reservation is found to correct it. He plans to voice strong opposition to those features of the League of Nations and other provisions of the treaty which he said he regarded as "highly objectionable" and "productive of future wars."

Other Who Will Speak. Senator Lodge stated today that he would deliver an address tomorrow in opposition to the Shantung "settlement," while Senators Borah, of Idaho and Norris of Nebraska, both Republicans, also promised denunciation of the pact by which the Peace Conference recognized Japan's claim to the former German concessions in Shantung.

Despite the bitter opposition to the Shantung deal in the Senate, the refusal of the so-called "mild reservationists" on the Republican side, as well as of many Administration Senators, to agree to textual amendments, was regarded by Senators on both sides as foreshadowing the defeat of the Shantung, as well as of all other remaining amendments.

Such amendments can just as well be covered with reservations, it was contended, which Senator Lodge and his colleagues assert will receive the undivided support of the Republican majority. Senator Penrose declared again today that "nothing could be gained by squabbling over time-wasting technicalities when reservations will do just as well as amendments."

NEW IRISH HOME RULE BILL READY

Measure to Be Introduced in Parliament, Says London Daily News.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—A new Irish home rule bill will be introduced in parliament, according to the parliamentary lobby correspondent of the Daily News today.

(A law providing for Irish home rule was enacted by parliament prior to the outbreak of the war, but did not become effective.)

Walter Long, former home secretary, has been appointed chairman of the cabinet committee that will deal with the new bill, the Daily News said.

According to the Daily Graphic, Sir Edward Carson, leader of the anti-Irishers, and Joseph Devlin, leader of the Irish nationalists, will both be consulted.

"Peace with Ireland is urgent, but it can only be had with Prof. De Valera (president of the Sinn Féin organization), and not with Sir Edward Carson," said the Daily Herald, organ of the labor party.

WALES MAY DELAY WASHINGTON VISIT

Possible Change in Itinerary of Prince Depends on President's Health.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—No announcement has been made about possible changes in the plans for the visit of the Prince of Wales to the United States, but they depend upon President Wilson's condition, says a copy-right dispatch to The World. The prince may decide to visit the Western States before going to Washington.

Great sympathy for President Wilson in his illness is expressed in all quarters there. King George and his ministers, as well as the general public, watch closely the White House bulletins. Lord Grey, British Ambassador at Washington, is keeping the Government informed of the President's condition by a daily cablegram.

A noted London physician expressed the opinion that never in history had leaders of nations been subjected to a more severe continuous strain than in the last five years and none had borne a greater strain than President Wilson. In fact, the physician said, it was only by the President's indomitable spirit that he could have shouldered his crushing responsibilities for so long a time.

SH-H-H!

That's the Noise a Man Makes in Capital When He Buys an Innocent Crook.

Because Everybody Knows What He Wants It For.

Time was when a man could go into a store and purchase a five-gallon earthenware crock without any undue notice being attached to his purchase. Since July 1, last, war time prohibition has wrought many changes. And among them is the status of the commonplace, earthenware, five-gallon crock, formerly thought of as a container for pickles, sauerkraut or salted herring, now used as—Well, take the case of Mr. Smith: Mr. Smith goes into a store and carefully surveys the force of clerks, picking therefrom the most intelligent young man and ordering him forward with a motion to the counter. Leaning confidently over the counter he whispers that he desires to purchase a five-gallon, earthenware crock. Whereupon the clerk goes into a fit of the giggles, and winking, turns to the shelf and secures the article, wrapping it up and handing it over the counter to Mr. Smith with an increased burble of suppressed laughter.

Mr. Smith takes his purchase and slinks from the store. And what he does with the crock is known only to Mr. Smith and a few select friends.

In addition there has been an unprecedented sale of five-gallon earthenware crocks in the last few months, and the same has brought about a dearth of the receptacles in the Capital only relieved by large orders from out of town manufacturers.

A wholesale dealer in Washington told a representative of The Times today that, although earthenware crocks of the five-gallon variety and larger were plentiful as Carter's liver pills three months ago, today they are rarer than a Chinaman with whiskers, and that the increased demand has been keeping the manufacturer busy as a one-eyed orphan at a three-ring circus.

What's the answer? The five-gallon crock, made of earthenware, is a perfect container for certain liquids, in that it is not affected by the acids formed therein, and does not infect the mixture it contains by corroding or harmful combination. The sale of the crockery of this type is incident, it has been noticed, with the demand for hops, malt, yeast, and a number of other eatables during July, August, September, and the present month.

ACCUSED OF THEFT OF MACHINE GUN

George E. Rayburn, a sailor, was arraigned in the United States branch of Police Court this morning on a charge of theft of a German hand machine gun rifle from Walton Mize, a soldier, who captured the weapon from Germans in France. He was also charged with stealing baggage packs of enlisted men from the Red Cross canteen in the Union Station.

The sailor was arrested by Detective Harry Evans, who declares that the packs of Mize and L. H. Condit, a sailor, were found on him.
